

Avon Valley School Games New Age Kurling Competition.

On Thursday 10th of December Avon Valley College and Stonehenge took part in the Avon Valley SSP annual New Age Kurling competition.

The prehistoric Scottish game of New Age Kurling was played fantastically and both opposing teams held the upmost respect for each another, all in all it was a peaceful game.

New Age Kurling is a game that originated in Scotland and consists of a target stuck to a floor, the aim of the game is to slide the stones along the floor to get it onto the middle of the target to score a ten.

They add the scores up from each of the team and whoever has the biggest score wins.

In pool one it was Paul and Liam from Stonehenge in first and in second place was Chloe and Kate from Avon valley.

In pool two it was Elise and Cameron from Avon Valley and in second place it was Luke and Leah from also Avon Valley.

Written by Lauren Edley

Photos by Lauren Edley and Tia Featherstone

